MICELLANEOUS DEATH FROM STARVATION .- At the Urait parrival of next English Mull. Boughton Workhouse, Chester, the other day, an inquest was held upon the body of a man who was unknown; but who had given his name as William Thomas Toxteth park. It appeared that the deceased was mind by a labourer in an outlinuse connected with the Egerton Arms public-house, the Backe. He was covered with straw, and the labourer asked him to go away, but he was too weak to move, and he was taken to the workhouse, where he died shortly afterwards. Mr. Watson. surgeon, who visited the deceased, stated that he found him in a state of coma, and his opi nion was that he died from effusion of serum on the brain, induced by exposure and from want of proper food. A verdiet was returned in accordance with the medical evidence. Michael Kelly, in 1806, appears to have posed the commissioners of the income tax in making his return of pursuits and empluments. In the will be disputehed for the above port about the pride of his heart he returned his income at bth proxima £500 yearly; but the commissioners were not. containted, and arged that his various employmenta must bring him in twice or thrice that minus suor. Here is Michael's account of hisinterview :- " Sir," said I, " I am free to confess / DIFF, North Garman Brig I have bried in my return, but yanity was the cause, and vanity is the badge of all my tribe. I have returned myself as baying £500 per Capt. Scholler will take measurement Cargo at annum; when, in fact, I have not five hundred low rates for the above port. mince of certain incomo. "- Pray, gir." anid the commissioner, " are yen not stage-manager of the opens house?"-"Yes, elr," said. " but there is not even a nominal salary attached to that office. Some sweet hope must have sustained him id that trying time, or the morning would have found bim dead there apon the rock of his dreadful exile. Daylight came, and with it the eager, crowds hastened back to their points of sight. The incoming trains all that day brought more and more spectators, and before noon the bridge was literally crowded with them, leaving but a small apace in the centre for the workmen with the raft; and on either side the bank was haed -nay, packed -with spectators. There were thousands upon thousands present, all eager, curious, and yet sympathetic. Avery appeared as on the day before, still hopeful, eating and drinking what was sent down to him, motioning with his hands and arms, and watching all that was done on the bridge and the shore.

The crisis of the excitement arrived when, about the middle of the second day, the second raft was launched from the bridge upon the ing to the Pray. hurrying flood.
